2016-2017 ANNUAL REPORT

A message from the Executive Director

Greetings, Partners and Friends:

It is hard to believe that another year has gone by since the last time I sat down to write a letter about the work we've done together to advance the public good. Since our last Annual Report, our story has deepened in ways that even surprise me, but the common theme is that each part has advanced student learning and strengthened communities across Indiana.

In the past year we:

- Expanded the Social Innovation Micro-Lending program to all 92 counties in Indiana and have opened the opportunity to any alum from an Indiana Campus Compact partner institution. These investments of up to $50,000 per loan will aid in the development of socially-conscious ventures across the state of Indiana.
- Devoted nearly $375,000 to support professional development, trainings, and programs to ensure the work in and with communities is done in a way that is mutually beneficial and focused on equity.
- Provided direct support to over 10,000 college students involved in community engagement projects ranging from service opportunities to civic learning and democratic engagement.
- Delivered 139% return on investment for everyone in this partnership.

Since our last Annual Report, our story has deepened in ways that even surprise me, but the common theme is that each part has advanced student learning and strengthened communities across Indiana.

These are only a few highlights of the work from the past year, and our story doesn't end there. In fact, our coming together to advance the public good will only ramp up from here. This year marks the end of year two of our five-year Strategic Plan. Partners and friends, we've only just begun!

Thank you for your continued commitment to Indiana's communities and being a partnership that believes in the power of coming together to advance the public good. We are because of us.

A message from the Board Chair

Dear Colleagues and Friends:

It has been an honor to serve as your Board Chair this past year and to represent all 35 colleges and universities that have dedicated their institutions to the public good by being a partner in the Indiana Campus Compact. I also want to commend our Executive Director, J.R. Jamison, and the work of the Indiana Campus Compact staff, including the 140 faculty/staff liaisons from our institutions, who have worked tirelessly to ensure we are indeed meeting the public purposes of our missions.

When we came together in 2015 to rededicate ourselves to our partnership to advance the public good, and subsequently put our stamp of approval on the Indiana Campus Compact 2015-2020 Strategic Plan, I couldn't have imagined how much we would accomplish in only two years. Because of our collaboration as a coalition and our commitment to work hand-in-hand with community partners, we've found that with each new chapter of our story the plot thickens and the impact of our work gets deeper. I encourage you to learn more about the story of our joint effort in the pages of this report.

If you find yourself reading this and you connect with our story, give me a call. Our book is always open to include new characters and storylines. Only together can we continue to advance the public good in Indiana communities.

Our story has just begun. While we've accomplished much in the first two years of the five-year Strategic Plan, and we've done so with new partners and new supporters, we would like to include additional institutions of higher education and more supporters in our story.

We know there is a wider coalition who want to help develop the next leaders of Indiana's communities. If you find yourself reading this and you connect with our story, give me a call. Our book is always open to include new characters and storylines. Only together can we continue to advance the public good in Indiana communities.

Yours sincerely,

David A. Bathe, D.A.

Our Mission

Indiana Campus Compact is a partnership of Indiana's public, private, and community college higher education institutions focused on advocating, implementing, and improving service engagement so students graduate as well-informed, engaged, and productive members of society who are fully enabled to provide leadership and service that advances the public good in their communities.

WHO WE ARE

Formed in 1993, Indiana Campus Compact partner college and university presidents and chancellors committed themselves and their institutions to develop mutually beneficial and meaningful campus-community collaborations which create engaged citizens and vibrant cities and towns. Indiana Campus Compact is the only organization in the state of Indiana that works with public, independent, and two-year institutions of higher education to advance the public good.

WHAT WE DO

Indiana Campus Compact invests in its partner institutions through training, grants, loans, and the professional network it provides for faculty, staff, and students. Through that support, Indiana campuses partner with community agencies to make a difference for thousands of community members each year. Last year, we invested over a quarter of a million dollars in our partner campuses through grants and training.

NATIONAL REACH

Indiana Campus Compact is one of 32 state and regional Compacts that together make up a coalition of 1,000+ colleges and universities committed to the public purposes of higher education. Each Compact works with local partner institutions and communities to advance place-based programming in pursuit of the shared mission.

Indiana Campus Compact

is a partnership of 35

colleges & universities
serving 60 campuses,
including public, private, two & four-year institutions.

In the Past Year

we invested

$375,000

in our partner campuses
through professional development, resources, and
funding opportunities.

Our Programs

supported

13,410+

students, faculty,
administrators,
community agencies, and
community members.

COMING TOGETHER STRATEGICALLY

We believe in advancing the public good and have implemented a strategic plan to make that happen. In the second year of our plan, we have focused on three strategic goals. Listed below, you will find the goals and examples of each.

1. Develop & deepen grant programs

We awarded Professor Gloria Murray from Indiana University Southeast a 3-year Engaged Campus Grant of $17,000 to leverage the University's academic expertise for the good of the community. The grant supports collaboration between Academic and Student Affairs Offices to integrate community engagement into the curricula. The community benefits from the collaboration by having their self-identified needs met, and the students involved develop meaningful connections to their careers and their social consciousness.

Professor Murray ->

In FY 16-17, our programs supported

13,413

students, faculty, staff, administrators, community agencies, and community members.

Mark Latta is the Director of the Writing Center, Instructor of English, and Public Literacy Coordinator at Marian University. In his second term as an Indiana Campus Compact Faculty Fellow,

3. Promote and advocate for campus/community partnerships

we awarded Latta a $3,750 Faculty Fellows grant from Indiana Campus Compact to continue his collaboration with the Indianapolis Public Transportation Corporation on a city-wide public literacy project centered around the IndyGo bus system.

With this support, Latta expanded his project, Collecting Connections, which organized and trained volunteers to interview riders across all of the IndyGo public transit routes to collect written and spoken stories about home and community. These public narratives were "published" through the IndyGo buses and murals displayed at the newly constructed Julia M. Carson Public Transit Center in downtown Indianapolis. As a visible and large-scale city-wide public literacy project, Collecting Connections will serve as a catalyst for promoting community narrative projects and facilitate a broader understanding of public literacy through the generation of city-wide community writing.

2. Provide professional development & recognition

The 2017 Service Engagement Summit and Awards Gala was focused on the role of social justice in higher education through the lens of power, privilege, and the coming together of communities. Over the two-day period, 227 attendees from 40 institutions in eight states participated in the event. Students, faculty, staff, and community partners gained practical knowledge, learned new skills, and were able to return to their institutions and offices ready to advocate for and implement positive impact for their neighbors.

COMING TOGETHER TO SUPPORT STUDENTS

We believe students are key to advancing the public good. Our support helps students become agents of change.

Recognition for Student Commitment to Community Partnerships

◀- Alexis Doyle from the University of Notre Dame won the 2017 Richard J. Wood Student Community Commitment Award. Alexis graduated in May with a degree in Biology and Peace Studies. A pre-med student who has spent the last four years weaving together her academic learning and her commitment to communities, Alexis has a clear calling to be a doctor who works outside the exam room. She connects her studies, her community and global engagement, and her sense of vocation to impact health solutions at the personal, local, and policy level.

*"Pursuing this education will allow me to be a doctor who uses her expertise in medicine to contribute to conversations taking place out of hospitals and that deeply affect the health of the underserved and marginalized."

Grant Programs

Anderson University's Operation Foundation

holds a day of service each year.

This year, more than 120 students participated in completing 18 community projects with support from their $1,000 Student Community Service grant from Indiana Campus Compact. These collaborations also helped promote partnerships among the community agencies for further collaboration.

"This grant is a game changer. It had such a great impact on our community and we are honored to have been able to put it to good use," said Operation Foundation leader Logan Hauer.

Professional Development

Campus Compact's national Newman Civic Fellowship recognizes and supports students in their civic, personal, and professional development as the next generation of public problem solvers. Last fall, Campus Compact brought together 83 Fellows for the inaugural national convening of Newman Civic Fellows. These students represent the next generation of public problem solvers and civic leaders. Through the fellowship, Campus Compact provides learning opportunities focused on the skills fellows need to serve as effective agents of change in addressing public problems and building equitable communities.

COMING TOGETHER TO SUPPORT COMMUNITIES

We believe that community agencies can be co-educators for students while collaborating with the campus to improve lives of community members.

In FY 16-17, we supported 464
campus/community
partnerships that directly
benefit community members

Campus/Community Partnerships

Nominated by IUPUI, Mapleton Fall Creek Development Corporation, Indianapolis, won the 2017 Outstanding Community Partner Award which honors community partner agencies whose staff and volunteers provide faculty, students, and staff an extended classroom and act as their co-educators. Mapleton Fall Creek Development Corporation Executive Director ◀ Leigh Riley Evans partnered with IUPUI Anthropology Professor Susan Hyatt to develop a student research project that has the potential to save lives. After a recent report on life expectancy listed the Mapleton Fall Creek neighborhood as next-to-lowest in central Indiana, Evans and Hyatt worked with students to research factors that contribute to obesity and its attendant conditions which have reached epidemic levels in lower income and minority communities, compromising residents' life expectancy. That research provided the community with concrete actions to take to reduce the epidemic.

Mapleton Fall Creek Residents Planting a Community Garden ->

Recognition for Staff Commitment to Community Partnerships

◀ Heather Miklozek, Community Engagement Director at Indiana State

University, won the 2017 Community

Service Director Award. Heather focuses her work on social change and capacity building. Heather provides her campus community with ample opportunities for both curricular and co-curricular partnerships and programs, and she also has an exceptional record of her own personal, professional involvement in the community. In her role, Heather leverages University resources to the mutual benefit of the institution and their community partner agencies. She develops new, and strengthens existing, partnerships throughout the Wabash Valley with the goal of empowering students, faculty, and staff to embrace the concept of global citizenship. These partnerships make life better for thousands of people in Wabash Valley while they reinforce students' understanding of, and compassion for, their fellow humans.

Grant Programs

We awarded Ivy Tech Community College Northwest/North Central Region a $2,000 Listening to Communities grant to cover the costs of a special event to educate faculty, staff, students, and community members about issues that plague the LGBTQ community, with a focus on suicide prevention. The Listening to Communities meeting also provided an opportunity for the newly developed LGBT club to connect with local community agencies and build partnerships to ensure its success. Because of the grant, The Department of Student Affairs and HR have formed a team to develop "Safe Zone" training for faculty, staff and students in collaboration with their community partner, The LGBTQ Center. As South Bend deals with increasing suicide rates, this event helped raise awareness of the resources and tools Ivy Tech can provide for the South Bend LGBTQ Community.

COMING TOGETHER IN PARTNERSHIP

We believe that providing funds, training, and resources to faculty and staff is an integral piece of the Compact between Indiana Campus Compact, our partner institutions, and the community agencies that serve our state.

Recognition for Faculty Commitment to Community Partnerships

◀- Priscilla Barnes, Indiana University School of Public Health, won the 2017 Brian Douglas Hiltunen Award for the Outstanding Contribution to the Scholarship of Engagement.

Dr. Barnes places community engagement at the center of her work as a teacher and a scholar. She is succeeding in building creative and authentic partnerships that enhance student learning opportunities and strengthen local health systems. Dr. Barnes is devoted to creating a community of scholars committed to community-based research. But, perhaps more importantly, she uses her knowledge to help community organizations conduct their own program assessment.

Through her outreach, Dr. Barnes engages community members who are minimally trained in research and makes leveraging their partnership with the university comfortable and effective.

During FY 16-17, we supported 784

faculty and staff who created engaged curriculum, conducted community-based research, and provided professional service to non-profit agencies

Our Compact

Each year, each semester, each day, we work in partnership toward the nexus of public good.

In that nexus we find expertise, rewards, resources, and passion all working in tandem to make people's lives better.

Recognition for University-wide Commitment to Community Partnerships

The University of Notre Dame won the 2017 Engaged Campus Award which honors institutions for their ability to improve community life and to educate students for civic and social responsibility by giving them a well-rounded, thoughtful, challenging, and just education. More than 80% of Notre Dame students are involved in service engagement and there are campus-wide learning outcomes for students' curricular engagement with the community. The University of Notre Dame equips its faculty and staff with the support they need to provide their students with not only academic rigor, but also present the opportunity to learn one of the most important things in life – "a sense of human solidarity and concern for the common good that will bear fruit as learning becomes service to justice." In his letter of application, President John Jenkins said, "In addition to the established work, the university also supports the pursuit of individual projects that arise from community need or ideas, and developed by the collaborative pursuit of knowledge and the common good."

COMING TOGETHER TO BE AGENTS OF CHANGE

Because of your support, Indiana Campus Compact is able to work as an agent of change to bring all sectors of higher education—public, independent, community college—together to focus on campus-community collaborations. Those collaborations are the nexus of the Compact.
