

2018 Fall Kick-off Retreat September 21, 2018

“LISTEN. TALK. TRANSFORM.”

Faculty, students, and staff - you're invited!

This annual retreat is FREE and open only to Indiana Campus Compact partner campuses.

This year's opening keynote and Q & A session from Indiana Humanities CEO Keira Amstuz, will explain how Indiana Humanities uses dialogue with communities to address issues, come together, and learn from one another. She will talk about three different models for campuses to use in their dialogue work and provide resources available from Indiana Humanities to implement them.

Track one is a deep-dive, day-long workshop from Dan Griffith and Carolyn Gentle-Genitty, IUPUI, concentrating on the basics of communicating across divides. The workshop features a tool kit which includes a step-by-step guide to understanding and taking action in the 4 stages of dialogue.

Tracks two and three consist of peer-led workshops such as:

- Amy Ludwig, Director of the Campus Election Engagement Project will discuss non-partisan ways to implement election engagement activities that promote civil discourse on campuses and provide resources to implement them.
- Past recipients of the Indiana Campus Compact Listening to Communities (LTC) grant from IU Bloomington, IU South Bend, Indiana State, University of Notre Dame, and Saint Mary's College will share various successful LTC models to start a dialogue with your community to find out their needs and work together to address them.
